1) Product data

- Physical measurements
  - Thermal images: temperatures reported on the mobile app for each pixel of a sensing array. For example, 256x192, 384x288, etc. These displayed images are captured in JPG files; temperature measurements are displayed as live readings on the mobile app but not stored for later use.
- Device identifiers
  - Model is one of TC01A, TC01B, TC01C, TC03A.
- Status / telemetry – No telemetry is provided for device operation/usage.
- Events & diagnostics – No telemetry is provided of warnings, alarms or error codes.
- Configuration values – Certain image-specific settings (image marker locations, emissivity coefficients, etc.) are retained in the mobile app settings and are “factory-resettable” via on-device menus.

Estimated volume (typical): typically 30–50 kB per JPG file.

Collection frequency: determined by user interaction with the mobile app.

For general operational guidance, please refer to the product’s user manual.

2) Data formats

- On export: JPG file of the displayed thermal image and annotations.

3) Storage & retention

- On-device storage: No – images are only stored on the mobile device (photo library).
- Cloud / servers: No.

4) User access, export & erase

- Where: create the image using the Fluke iSee mobile app (Apple and Google app stores).
- How: save the JPG image to the Photos app on the mobile device.
- Export formats: JPG.

5) Data Sharing with Third Parties

To the extent Fluke has access to the relevant data, you may authorize a third party to access such data by contacting Fluke using the details set out above, specifying the recipient and purpose of the data sharing. You may view and revoke authorized data transfers at any time via the same contact details.

Where data is stored locally on your device or within your own environment and is not accessible to Fluke, you are responsible for granting third-party access directly.

6) Terms of service, contract term & termination

As provided in the quote, order form, or agreement between you and Fluke. If you purchased the product through a distributor or reseller, the terms of service, contract term and termination are as agreed between you and that seller.

7) How Data Holder uses the data

If Fluke has access to any data generated through your use of a Fluke connected product or related service, this will be used in accordance with the applicable agreement between you and Fluke, through which you purchase Fluke's products or services. The relevant Fluke entity details will be specified in the quote or order form as applicable.

Fluke may engage third parties to act as service providers and perform certain tasks on its behalf, such as processing or storing data generated in connection with your use of a Fluke connected product or related service.
